A special session on “Women in Tech: Diverse Minds, Disruptive Ideas”, on the sidelines of the ongoing IMC 2025, celebrated the growing contribution of women to India’s technology and innovation landscape. Addressing the session, Chief Minister of Delhi, Smt. Rekha Gupta highlighted that empowering women innovators and professionals is central to achieving balanced and sustainable digital growth. She called upon industry and government stakeholders to create a stronger ecosystem for mentorship, skilling, and entrepreneurship that enables women to become active leaders in India’s digital transformation.

Mrs. Gupta emphasised that the government’s focus is on self-reliance across sectors, from defence to technology. “The vision is clear; our country should make its own semiconductors, build its own networking systems, and make the most mobile phones in the world,” she said.

The Chief Minister also highlighted the growing role of women in shaping India’s technology story. “There is no gender for courage, creativity, innovation, or vision. The sky is the limit,” she said.

During her visit to various pavilions at IMC 2025, Smt. Gupta interacted with women entrepreneurs, researchers, and startup founders showcasing emerging technologies in AI, IoT, robotics, and telecom innovation. Her address aligned with the theme of IMC 2025 — Innovate to Transform — and reaffirmed the government’s commitment to inclusivity, innovation, and citizen-centric development.
