The President of India Smt Droupadi Murmu inaugurated an All-India Conference and launched a nationwide campaign 'Karmayoga for Empowered Bharat' of Brahma Kumaris in New Delhi today (February 13, 2026). She also launched the silver jubilee celebrations of Om Shanti Retreat Centre, Gurugram.

Speaking on the occasion, the President said that integration of moral values and spirituality with material progress is essential for balanced and holistic development. Economic progress fosters prosperity and technological progress promotes innovation, efficiency and competition. These lay the foundation for a prosperous nation. However, economic and technological development without morality can create imbalances in society. For example, unethical economic progress can lead to the concentration of wealth and resources, environmental damage and exploitation of vulnerable sections of society. The use of technology without ethical values can be destructive to humanity.

The President said that spirituality provides us with fundamental values and a moral framework that inspires us to practice Karmayoga, or selfless service. Spirituality also emphasizes virtues such as integrity, compassion, non-violence and service to others. These are principles essential for building a peaceful and just society. When our thoughts are grounded in spiritual values, we are able to transcend self-interest and consider the welfare of all. Just and fair administrative decisions can be made by the country's leadership based on spirituality. Such decisions are not for the benefit of any one class, but for the benefit of all citizens. When government actions are just, it promotes trust and stability in society.

The President said that Brahma Kumaris Ishwariya Vishwa Vidyalaya teaches Rajayoga. It is not merely about sitting at one place and contemplating the self. Karmayoga is a fundamental part of it. Karmayoga is about following high spiritual principles while fulfilling all our responsibilities. She was happy to note that millions of people associated with Brahma Kumaris are living meaningful lives by regularly practicing Karmayoga. She said that through Karmayoga, every citizen of this country can contribute to India's sustainable and holistic development. This will not only enable India to progress economically, but will help us create a society that will be a model of value-based life for the world.
