During his recent diplomatic tour, Hon'ble Prime Minister presented world leaders with specially curated gifts reflecting India's rich tribal heritage and traditional craftsmanship.

A traditional Gond painting from Madhya Pradesh was presented to Crown Princess Victoria of Sweden. The renowned art form, created by the Gond tribal community, is known for its intricate dot-and-line patterns and vibrant natural colours, and continues to support the livelihoods of tribal artisans.

Italian Prime Minister Giorgia Meloni was gifted a Muga Silk stole from Assam along with a Shirui Lily stole crafted by the Tangkhul Naga community of Manipur. Muga silk, known for its natural golden sheen, is a GI-tagged textile tradition preserved by tribal weaving communities for centuries. The Shirui Lily stole draws inspiration from Manipur's rare state flower and reflects the cultural identity of the Tangkhul Naga tribe.

Her Majesty the Queen Mother of the UAE received Black Rice (Chak-Hao) from Manipur, a heritage grain traditionally cultivated by tribal hill communities and widely valued for its nutritional properties.

Through these gifts, the Hon'ble Prime Minister highlighted India's tribal traditions, craftsmanship and cultural heritage on the global stage.
