A focused exercise was undertaken for records management and digitisation. A total number of 1449 physical files and 501 e-files were reviewed for recording, weeding out and closure, as applicable, contributing to better record management and streamlining of administrative processes. The campaign also contributed to the effective utilisation of office space and disposal of redundant materials.

In addition to cleanliness and administrative reforms, the Department placed emphasis on the health, well-being and capacity building of its employees.
